Deportations may affect farm futures

VERONICA JACUINDE

The Press and Tribune

After an executive order was signed by President Donald Trump on his first day in office, plans for the largest mass deportation in U.S. history are now underway, with significant implications for the agricultural industry.

The Border Patrol's Operation Return to Sender, a preview of the deportation conducted two weeks ago in Kern County, was criticized by immigrant rights groups for disproportionately targeting farmworkers. "Border Patrol agents with the El Centro Sector Border Patrol conducted an operation in and around the Bakersfield area in Kern County," said Chief Patrol Agent Gregory Bovino. "Our operation focused on interdicting those who have broken U.S. federal law, trafficking of dangerous substances, noncitizen criminals and disrupting the transportation routes used by transnational criminal organizations."

This operation has left many local farmers and workers uncertain of their future, as it brought to the surface the increasing vulnerability of immigrant labor on which the agricultural sector depends. "I agree with some of President Trump's policies on immigration, especially his stance on deporting those with criminal backgrounds," said Miguel Prieto, a Wasco farmer and owner of Wonder Bee Apiary, who faced the consequences of the operation firsthand. "But something should be done to protect the working class, those who are not here to commit crimes but are here to work and contribute to the economy. Not everyone is willing to do this type of work. The conditions are tough - long hours and the physical demands. But it's a job that needs to get done because others

According to the American Immigration Council, mass deportations could cause a significant labor shock to the agricultural industry, resulting in the loss of at least one in eight workers.

Lions Club a leader in community service

VERONICA JACUINDE The Press and Tribune

The Shafter Lions Club, a key pillar of community service in Shafter, has had a profound impact locally through its dedication to improving the lives of residents and fostering connections across the region. Councilmember Gustavo Olvera, who has served as the club's treasurer since 2022, is a strong advocate for its mission, which focuses on empowering individuals to contribute meaningfully to their communities while promoting goodwill and understanding.

"The mission of the Shafter Lions Club is to empower people to contribute meaningfully to their communities, fostering goodwill and understanding worldwide because it's everywhere, not just in Shafter," Olvera explained.

While the club supports global initiatives such as combating world hunger and childhood cancer, Olvera emphasizes that the core of their work is in the local community. "There is a lot that the Lions Club does around the world, but within our community, it's about promoting fellowship and collaboration for the greater good," he said.

The Lions Club is deeply involved in Shafter, hosting numerous events throughout the year that bring the community together. The Harvest Festival, which attracted over 7,000 people last year, is just one example of the club's success in creating large-scale, highly anticipated events. The Christmas parade continues to grow, and the club also organizes National Night Out, participates in Thankful Thursday (providing food for over 100 families during Thanksgiving), Photos With Santa and the Stuff the Bus campaign before each school year.

Olvera believes these events reflect the community's strong desire to connect and contribute. "It's always for the goodwill of the community and bringing families together. The numbers show that the community wants it and seeks it. When it's there, they want to be a part of it."

He's grateful for President Gilbert Alvarado's leadership. "He's very active and always trying to bring new ideas that unite our

The City Council Tuesday night authorized nearly $38 million to upgrade its aging water system.

'Once funded, it will enable the replacement of four aging wells with new ones. While this replacement will not increase overall water capacity, it will provide more reliable water infrastructure with modern equipment," Assistant City Manager Maria Lara explained.

Under the proposed agreement with the State Water Board, the improved wells will open up opportunities to begin issuing "will-serve" letters to developers for smaller projects, addressing the city's immediate water capacity needs on a case-by-case basis. "This is crucial, as the city is currently unable to issue such letters due to its existing water limitations."

Council OKs trailer for Gossamer Grove

JAMIE STEWART

For The Shafter Press

The Shafter City Council Tuesday night approved $50,000 to lease a trailer to be used as a temporary substation for the Shafter Police Department at Gossamer Grove.

Noting the need for a permanent presence in the area, Chief Randy Mulligan told the council that the permanent building will be used as a break room, a place where officers can conduct investigations, as well as a place to do paperwork.

The building will include an office space, a kitchen area, break room and a work space. It will be supplied by William Scotsman, Inc., with the 23-month lease agreement totaling $50,000.

SHAFTER

Councilmember Gus Olvera asked where the building will be located, and the council was told that it would be at the site of the future permanent substation, which is at the northern end of Seventh Standard Road, on the eastern side of Gossamer Grove Lane.

After further questions, it was noted that the completion has been pushed back and the permanent substation will not be ready now until the summer of 2026, with construction being completed in approximately 16-18 months.

Also on the agenda, the council approved the installation of five new workstations at the Shafter Police Department,

Members of St. John's Knights of Columbus Council #2938, the confirmation class from St. John the Evangelist Parish and community members gathered at dawn for a heartfelt ceremony outside the church. Sunday's event, Love Life, Choose Life, featured the erection of a display of several hundred crosses, each symbolizing a life lost to abortion.

In conjunction with the memorial, the Knights of Columbus held their annual Baby Bottle fundraiser, an initiative to support the Bakersfield Pregnancy Center. Over the weekend, they collected more than $1,200 from parishioners and secured pledges from local businesses for additional contributions. This supported the center's life-affirming mission, providing essential resources and assistance to expectant mothers during pregnancy and in the challenging days that follow.

To conclude the event, the Knights of Columbus led the gathered community in a solemn Rosary for Life, reflecting on the sanctity of life and reaffirming their commitment to supporting mothers and their unborn children.

Grand Knight Hector Avila expressed his gratitude, saying, "The St. John's Knights of Columbus are deeply grateful for the support of our Pastor, Father Loji Pilones, and our parishioners during this Love Life, Choose Life weekend. Your financial contributions have empowered us to bring attention to the many precious lives lost to abortion and to support the life-saving work of the Bakersfield Pregnancy Center."

"I don't think there's a single farm in California where a Mexican isn't running a crew or playing a major role in production. His mass deportation policy is going to crumble the agricultural industry as we know it, and America will feel the impact

While some support the deportation of individuals with criminal records, California State University, Bakersfield, professor of sociology Gonzalo Santos, an expert in international migration, highlights the danger of mischaracterizing undocumented immigrants, whose supposed offenses often include minor violations rather than violent crimes. This distinction is crucial, as deportation policies disproportionately target those who are vital contributors to industries like agriculture while failing to consider the nuances of what constitutes a deception deliberately promoted in their narrative. They are really referring to people who, for many reasons, have committed legal infractions of various kinds, most of them civil infractions related to immigration irregularities, many of which involve things like traffic tickets and minor misdemeanors. Republicans consistently conflate these cases, which represent the majority, with very few and scattered cases of violent crime. They amplify these cases to smear the entire 13 million undocumented immigrant population as violent criminals. This is a falsehood, and Americans have fallen for it. Polls show that 80 percent support deporting criminal undocumented immigrants. Still, they don't ask what crime we're talking about because they don't realize that within that term 'criminal,' all kinds of minor infractions are involved."

"Trying to smear and paint these individuals as violent criminals is a falsehood,

Republican Congressman David Valadao has been known for his focus on agriculture and bipartisan efforts, particularly on immigration reform and supporting the needs of his district's farming community. "It is crucial we work towards common sense immigration reform that creates a pathway to earned legal status for hardworking individuals contributing to our economy while ensuring the removal of those who threaten the safety of our communities."

"One of the biggest challenges in the agricultural industry is a lack of a reliable and legal workforce, and as domestic labor becomes more scarce, our producers need to rely on programs like H-2A [a U.S. government visa program that allows agricultural employers to hire foreign workers temporarily for seasonal or temporary farmwork] to fill the shelves in grocery stores and put food on our tables."

Daniel Hartwig, president of the California Fresh Fruit Association, which represents about 400 growers, echoed these concerns: "We're going to D.C., and we're talking to the representatives there, saying if we lost half of our workforce, that would be a huge disaster, and we won't have a lot of the fruits and vegetables that make America healthy again. Fresh fruits and vegetables are a huge part of doing that, but we can't do that without the hands that harvest our crops. So, we're advocating to make sure that we're not seeing huge devastating situations, and beyond that, we need to have meaningful immigration reform. That is something we've been pressing for years upon years, and we're hoping that elected representatives will take those actions sooner rather than later. I know David Valadao is poised and has, I believe, already introduced another immigration bill to try to make sure that we're taking care of the folks who are already here and get some reform that actually takes place. We recognize the valuable contribution that the farm workers bring to our society, and we want to make sure that we have a place for them to help bring those nutritious fruits to our tables."

community. He's great at introducing innovation and creating things that haven't been done before, like National Night Out and the upcoming National Prayer Dinner. He started the Christmas Parade, and many other events have come to fruition because of his efforts," Olvera said.

In addition to Alvarado's leadership, Olvera emphasizes the hard work of the club's members and the vital support of local businesses. "We have an incredible group of members who work hard to volunteer their time. If we didn't have the great group of people we have, we wouldn't be able to do everything we do. Our partnership with local businesses has also been crucial to the success of the Lions Club. We wouldn't be able to have some of our events without their support."

One of the aspects Olvera is most proud of is the club's commitment to helping local youth through scholarships and providing opportunities for personal growth. "The ability to give opportunities to our students to see the world, help them with their development, inspire them to have goals and strive to be better people gives me satisfaction," he said. The club raises funds for these scholarships through events like their fireworks stand, which is supported by the local commu-

The club meets twice a month at the Veterans Hall for dinner, and Olvera invites anyone interested in making a difference to join. "Come out, join us and see that what we do is great for the community. The more help we have, the more we can do," he concluded.

Programs funded by the grant will run through September 2025, focusing on enforcement and education.

"This grant is great for Wasco. It helps us tackle alcohol-related problems by funding operations that keep our city safe," said Police Chief Charlie Fivecoat. This program will make a big difference for the people of Wasco. By reducing underage drinking, it helps protect local youth from making risky choices and keeps them safer from alcohol-related accidents or legal trouble. Training business owners and employees will ensure alcohol is served responsibly, creating safer places for everyone to enjoy.

Fewer alcohol-related emergencies will also free up police and emergency services to focus on other important community needs. Overall, this grant helps build a healthier, safer, and more connected city for all Wasco residents. To view the full press release, visit the City of Wasco's website at https:// www.cityofwasco.org/

A small town's big role in harness racing

By Susan Grisham

Once upon a time, there were several thriving harness horse stables in Shafter. The training tracks are smoothed over, the barns are all torn down and the turn-out paddocks are but a memory. Most people have only heard stories of the harness horse training stables that used to dot the acres surrounding Shafter.

I also worked at O'Brien Stables, and I would like to share some brief thoughts on my time spent working with and beside some of the greatest horsemen and horses the sport of harness racing had to offer. I moved to Shafter in August 1959 at the age of 8. It wasn't long before I learned I lived in walking distance to the Joe O'Brien stables. As soon as I found horses near me I would walk every chance I got over to the stables and talk to the grooms and pet the horses.

I was a happy kid when the grooms would "let me" walk the horses they cared for, or clean harnesses – or clean anything. Later, when I was a groom, I knew these were not privileges. I got to know many of the grooms and trainers well.

I met Joe O'Brien when I was 9 or 10 years old, and I was starstruck from then on. One of my favorite things to do was to watch the blacksmith shoe horses. I would stand for hours watching horse after horse get their new shoes. I don't think anything ever mesmerized me as much as watching the horses having their feet cleaned, cut, measured and new shoes applied.

The horse foot is similar to a human fingernail and they do not feel anything when shoes are nailed to their feet. The smell of burning coal and horse feet are two of my best memories from my childhood. I fulfilled one of my childhood dreams in 1971 when I went to work as a groom at Cal-Expo in Sacramento. In the 10 years I worked on the race track I worked for many trainer/drivers, some famous, some not so famous. But they all loved the sport and the horses. Among the trainers I personally knew were Joe O'Brien, Glen Holt, Joe Lighthill, Charlie King, Bob Farrington, Jim Dennis, Joe Valero, Joe Marsh Jr., Danny Shelter, Jim Reynolds, Jack Sherren and more I cannot remember.

It saddens me to know the stables are gone, but not forgotten. I enjoyed going to O'Brien Farm as a child, and the years I spent taking care of horses on the race track. I have too many happy memories to count. Shafter was a wonderful place to be young and grow.

So where did these training stables come from? The sport of harness racing started in 1849 as an unregulated gathering of horses. In 1879, the Trotting Horse Breeders Association adopted a set of rules to control the undesirable and inferior traits of the horses.

Although it was 60 to 70 years later that harness horse racing came to Shafter, the men who brought the sport to Shafter spared no cost in improving the Standardbred breed, as harness horses are known. Sol Camp, William "Bill" Lachenmaier and Bob Neuman pioneered the introduction of the sport to Shafter and will long be remembered for bringing the best trainers and drivers to the area.

Joe O'Brien

To help finance bringing horses and trainers to town, Bill Lachenmaier held exhibitions and social events. More of a hobby to start, the interest created by these events developed into a friendly rivalry between the three men. The men became owners and breeders of some of the greatest Standardbreds in the country, often buying and trading between themselves. One of the other made it to the Winners Circle, winning such nationally known races as the Hambletonian, Little Brown Jug, The Californian Sportsman, The American Classic and many others. Trainers and drivers Neil Boardman,

A portion of the O'Brien Stables, 1962, with jog carts resting in front of the barn.

Charlie Whitt, Ken Cartnal, Joe O 'Brien and others enjoyed some of their greatest years during this time. It would be almost impossible to name all the great Standardbreds owned by these pioneer horsemen.

To name a few, Scott Frost, owned by Sol Camp and driven by Joe O'Brien, won the 1955 Hambletonian. Red Streak, Angus Worthy and Frontiersman all won over $50,000 for Camp. Hal Tass, owned by Bill Lachenmaier and driven by Ken Cartnal, was the winner at Aurora Downs in 1955. Bob Neuman's 4-year-old filly, Frilla Hanover, was a star at Bay Meadows. Carroll Lexington won the Grand Circuit in Kentucky, driven by trainer Neil Boardman. These three men left a legend that inspired trainers and owners to continue making Standardbred history from coast to coast for many years to come. The trainers who made Shafter their headquarters deserve our recognition. Following are some of the many of note.

Joe O'Brien was born in Alberton, Prince Edward Island, Canada. His father was involved in breeding and racing of Standardbreds. It would become part of Joe's early life. He won his first race at age 16. After finishing school, instead of going to veterinary college as his mother wanted, in the fall of 1935 he chose to go to work as a trainer in River Herbert, Nova

Within a few years he became a dominant force in racing in the Maritime Provinces. He led all drivers in wins for five straight years from 1943 to 1947, and at Truro Raceway he won a record-shattering 11 races on a single race card. In 1947 he led all drivers in North America with 128 wins. But the United States Trotting Association did not recognize the 44 races he won in the Maritime Provinces and gave him a National ranking of 7th in the USTA standings. In 1947 Joe headed to Del Mar, Calif., where he was hired to drive and train for the West Coast division of Castleton Farms Racing Stable.

Joe gained national recognition when he drove and trained the Castleton pacer Indian Land to victory in the $50,000 Golden West Pace at Hollywood Park

Racetrack. In 1951, he accepted an offer to take over as head trainer and driver for Sol (S.A.) Camp Farms Inc. in Shafter, a city Joe would call home for the rest of his life. Joe would go on to win the Horse of the Year in 1954 and 1955 with Scott Frost. The horse would be the Triple Crown of Trotting winner in 1954 and 1955. This would be the start of Joe O'Brien's long career as one of Harness Racing's top driver/ trainers. He was inducted into Canada's Sports Hall of Fame, Prince Edward Island Sports Hall of Fame, U.S. Harness Racing Hall of Fame, Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame, Canada's National Harness Racing Awards and Kern County Sports Hall of Fame. Some of the best horses driven by O'Brien were Armbro Flight, Armbro Nesbit, Fresh Yankee, Ima Lula, Melvin's Woe, Nero, Shadow Wave, and Scott Frost. At the time of his death in 1984, Joe had won 4,285 races and $20 million in purses. O'Brien Stables was one of the premier facilities in the harness racing world. The stable housed 75-100 horses. It covered 50 acres, including a 5/8 mile track, which accommodates 6 sulkies, tack rooms (living quarters for personnel), permanent pasture, observation tower, stables, starting gate, parking space, room to walk horses, storage space for horse feed and supplies. It took over 50 people to keep the farm operating. Among the personnel were grooms, trainers, a veterinarian, a horse-shoer and office personnel. All gave a boost to the Shafter economy. All contributed to selecting

Joe O'Brien Shafter "Man of the Year" in 1972.

Glen Holt

Glen Holt was born in 1930 in Missouri. As a child he traveled with his family working the seasonal crops for a living throughout Arizona and California. The family lived in tents and labor camps. Because of the constant moving, he attended 13 different schools by the time he reached the 8th grade. The family finally settled to live in Shafter.

Years later, he worked for the Shafter Police Department, where he reached the rank of sergeant. While on the police force, he taught pistol shooting and he became an expert marksman. He left the police in the mid-1960s to follow his dream of becoming a harness horse owner and breeder. Racing Standardbreds from the mid-1960s to the 1970s, he became one of the most successful harness horse divers in the State of California. He started on the county fair circuit, then at Hollywood Park, Santa Anita, Bay Meadows, Los Alamitos and Cal Expo race tracks.

Glen Holt was a respected harness horse

driver/trainer. He was the first trainer in California to have a swimming pool built at his training facility in Shafter and was frequently sought out to train and race horses from stables across the U.S., Canada, France, New Zealand and Australia. Glen's son, Mike, followed him into racing. Mike started driving at age 16, and continued until he retired.

PASTOR'S CORNER The Good Shepherd

PASTOR SPENCER CARPENTER

1st Southern Baptist Church, Shafter

God all through the Bible is shown to be the Shepherd of His people. Jacob testified that it was "God who has been my Shepherd all my life long to this day" (Genesis 48:15b). In Psalm 23, David the shepherd declared "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want." The Lord is our perfect Shepherd, giving guidance, providing nourishment, rest, restoration and comfort. In Ezekiel 34, the Lord rebukes the bad shepherds or leaders of Israel for neglecting their duties.

But then the Lord declares, "I Myself will search for My sheep and seek them out" (11b). A prophecy is given that the Messiah will come and save the flock: "My servant David. He shall feed them and be their shepherd" (23b). This is exactly what Jesus Christ did, finding the people in His day spiritually wandering like sheep, not having a shepherd (Mark 6:34b).

All of us like sheep are prone to wander spiritually and go our own way in sin (Isaiah 53:6; Romans 3:23). We need a perfect shepherd to guide us, provide for us and protect us. Jesus revealed He is the Messianic shepherd who was prophesied, the Son of God sent to shepherd and to give eternal life to His people.

Jesus said that the Good Shepherd guards the door to the sheep pen (John 10:1-10). In ancient times, there would be a pen with fences or walls and one entrance. The shepherd calls each sheep by name and leads them into the safety of the sheep pen (2-4). The Good Shepherd guards against robbers, wild animals and strangers entering the pen to harm or steal the sheep (1, 5, 8). The unrepentant and spiritual predators do not enter.

The illustration is that Jesus is the door, the only way of salvation and it is entered by faith. "I am the door. If anyone enters by Me, he will be saved, and will go in and out and find pasture" (9).

The Good Shepherd Jesus Christ knows the sheep in close personal relationship (14-15). Believers know Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, as High Priest and intercessor, as guide, protector and provider (Philippians 3:8; Hebrews 4:14-16; 2 Peter 3:18). Jesus willingly laid down His life for the sheep (11, 15). This speaks of Jesus Christ sacrificing His life on the cross to pay for sins, offer forgiveness and secure eternal life (Romans 5:8; 1 Corinthians 15:3-4; 1 Peter 3:18). Jesus had the power to take up His life again, speaking of His resurrection and the resurrection life offered to all who believe (1 Corinthians 15). Jesus the Good Shepherd was on the mission of uniting all people in salvation in the Himself, making them one flock under one shepherd (16; Ephesians 2:14-3:7).

Have you believed in Him? Then you receive the guidance, protection and provision of the Good Shepherd who cares for your soul. Do you know Him? Then you have eternal life. "My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me And I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish; neither shall anyone snatch them out of My hand" (John 10:27-28) "For you were like sheep going astray, but now have returned to the Shepherd and Overseer of your souls" (1 Peter 2:25).

Lady Generals stay perfect in SSL

JAMIE STEWART

For The Press and Tribune

The Shafter High Lady Generals basketball team are still undefeated in the SSL this season as they dominated rival Wasco Tigers last week with an 83-21 win in Shafter to close out the first round of league play.

Shafter had Isela Lugo leading the way with 26 points, with Alexia Ramirez scoring 20, Annemarie Puiser pouring in 16 and Kyla Schooley adding 14 points.

A lot of the Shafter offense was set up by a smothering pressure defense that forced the Lady Tigers into numerous turnovers, accounting for a good amount of the scoring for Shafter, especially in the second half.

Shafter opened up a 21-6 lead at the end of the first quarter of Thursday's game. The second quarter was all Lady Generals, with Lugo and Puiser hitting key baskets, enabling Shafter to open up a 30-point lead. The first half ended with the Lady Generals ahead by a score of 42-9.

The second half was brutal, as the Shafter squad scored at will on the Lady Tigers, with several of the baskets the result of turnovers in the Wasco side of the court, with the Shafter defense preventing the Wasco players to even bring the ball up to midcourt.

Shafter emptied the bench in the fourth quarter, with the game using a running clock in the final quarter. On the night, Kyla Schooley had her most productive game of the season, putting in 20 points and grabbing 9 rebounds. Alexia Ramirez also shone in the game, scoring 15 points and had 13 rebounds for her third double-double of the season.

As dominating as this game was, the Lady Generals had an even more dominant outing in their first game of the week. The Lady Generals beat the Kennedy Thunderbirds, 72-5. Isela Lugo had another outstanding game, pouring in 26 points to go along with 11 rebounds.

Puiser had a great game with 18 points, 8 rebounds to go along with six steals.

In SSL play so far, the Lady Generals have outscored their opponents by a combined score of 324-91, winning their games by an average of 54 points.

Head Coach Juan Zavala said that his team is getting better every week and said that they are looking to keep improving.

Alexia Ramirez and Kaylee Moreno go up for a rebound.

"We just keep working to get better, and we should be ready by the time that the playoffs come around."

The Lady Generals have two games this week, with Chavez on Tuesday night, followed by a matchup with the Taft Wildcats on Thursday night. The Chavez game will start at 6:30 p.m., with the game against Taft beginning at 8 p.m. Both games will be played in Shafter.

Wasco to spend $38M on water upgrades

By replacing these wells, the city aims to ensure a more dependable water supply, creating the potential to start building more homes and supporting smaller development projects. "However, the city still needs to secure funding for at least one or two additional wells to significantly expand capacity and accommodate larger projects in the future," she said.

Overall, the new wells represent a critical step toward improving the efficiency of water management and providing the city with more flexibility to evaluate and approve new developments as capacity allows.

Also, at the meeting, the council discussed the deterioration of Scofield Avenue, which has worsened significantly over the past five years. The city has received numerous complaints about potholes and poor road conditions in the last six months, prompting staff to investigate and prioritize a solution.

City staff conducted a soil investigation and developed plans and specifications for the improvement project. Following the advertisement for bids on Dec. 14, six contractors submitted proposals, with costs ranging from $456,176 to $555,948.

Nagle Earthworks emerged as the most cost-effective and qualified contractor, with a bid of $456,176 to complete the Scofield Avenue Improvement Project.

"The people who work at the prison will be very happy about this. They have been communicating with me, and I have been sharing this information with our city staff regarding this issue. I'm really pleased that our staff has taken the necessary steps to address it. Funding for these types of projects is not readily available, but I'm glad they were able to secure funding," Councilmember Gilberto Reyna said.

The council authorized the city manager to finalize and execute a short-term rental agreement with Pinnacle Prestress, Inc., a precast concrete manufacturer operating in Wasco. Pinnacle will rent approximately 15 acres of city-owned land located at the former farm labor camp site on a monthto-month basis for $4,000 per month, with an initial partial payment of $3,000.

The agreement, expected to last up to one year, provides Pinnacle with temporary storage space for equipment and materials during their expansion efforts. Both parties anticipate replacing this arrangement with a long-term lease or purchase agreement in the near future. The council's Real Estate Committee and city attorney reviewed the proposal and recommended approval.

The agreement will generate approximately $23,000 this fiscal year and $24,000 next year 2025-26.

provided by Stinson's. Chief Mulligan said, 'With the new hires, as well as the new fentanyl task program, and new trainees, we are requiring more workspace. We do not have adequate work space currently."

He said that he had hoped to use space at the new substation, but with the delays on that project, the additional workspaces has become necessary, at a cost of about

In the presentation portion of the meeting, the council recognized Bob Wiebe, who had served on the Shafter Planning Commission for 21 years. Mayor Givens stated that Wiebe had "made excellent and constructive contributions to the city of Shafter and has earned the admiration of all that he had worked with over the years."

Wiebe said that he was grateful for the years spent on the commission and said that he enjoyed being a part of the commission during such an exciting and productive time in Shafter's history.

On June 13, 1954, Ken Cartnal set a new track record for pacers at Bay Meadows Racetrack. He drove Freeman Hanover, owned by Bill Lachenmaier. The pacer went the mile in 2:03.2. The 7-yearold had won the fifth of five starts and a double for the day for Ken Cartnal.

Ken was from Licking County, Ohio. That's the way it went in the early days of this great driver's career. As dedicated a horseman as you could ever find, Ken returned to Shafter from Bay Meadows after having a successful race meet. He trained and drove horses for Bill Lachenmaier for many years. He made Shafter his hometown. Ken was always happy to share stories of the racetrack. He was well respected and liked by all who knew him.

Neil C. Boardman

As a lover of harness racing from an early age, Neil C. Boardman came to Shafter after spending most of his life teaching music. He had a music degree from Ithaca Conservatory of Music, becoming Professor of Violin and Stringed Instruments at the University of Oklahoma. He came to Shafter in the early 1940s.

Neil drove for Bob Neuman. He was known as an unusual horseman during his 35 years of racing, Neil taught music during the school year and raced the rest of the time. After hooking up with Bob June Jeffries at the Lachenmaier Stables.

Neuman he enjoyed his greatest success. 1947 was his greatest year. He was among the inaugural group to initiate Grand Circuit at Hollywood Park in April and ended with Aurora Downs in the fall.

Boardman was a great horseman and driver who left his mark on racetracks across the country. He was a driver that Shafter can be proud of.

Del Argo

Del Argo was a harness driver who used both the Joe O'Brien Stables and the Bill Lachenmaier – June Jeffries Stable to train his horses during down time from racing. Del was a quiet member of the Shafter community. He often spent his free time bowling at Westchester Bowl in Bakersfield.

June Jeffries

June Jeffries was the daughter of the late Bill Lachenmaier. She was the owner/manager of the horse farm and left nothing to be desired when updating the farm. The farm could house over 60 horses in the Beautifully maintained stables, paddocks, breeding barn, living quarters, half-mile training track and various other facilities. The paddocks were fitted with automatic fresh watering troughs. The great pacing gelding Rambling Willie was stabled and trained there during his heyday. His trainer, Bob Farrington, trained his stable at Lachenmaier/Jeffries Farm during the break between Bay Meadows and Los Alamitos Race Parks. George Larson and his wife managed the farm and resided on the farm. June Jefferies was vice president and director of the California Harness Breeders Association and was instrumental in breeding and raising her own racing stock with Lumber King standing at stud. There were two mares for breeding, Busy Teme Babe and Byrd Lumber. Her main concern was furnishing the facilities so other owners and trainers might bring their stock to Shafter for breeding, foaling and training until ready to go to the race track. Ken Cartnal stabled and trained at Lachenmaier/Jefferies farm between race meets. June Jefferies, was an early example of a woman in a man's world. She opened doors for the women who would follow in her footsteps in the Standardbred busi-

Editor's notes:

Stan Bayless took over the O'Brien Stables after Joe died in 1984, and operated it until he closed it in 2004. The Lachenmaier/Jefferies Stable was located just to the north of Shafter High School, today the Almond Grove Estates. Much of the information for this article came from Susan Grisham's personal memories and a Lions Harness Race Brochure 1976.
